
Health and safety policy statement

Redrow is committed to protecting the health and safety of everyone involved or affected by our activities.

- The Executive Board will discuss health and safety matters at their regular meeting. This will include accident reports, accident trends, monitoring performance, updates to policy and group standards.
- The Chief Operating Officer, Regional Chief Executives and Managing/Regional Directors are all accountable to the Executive Chairman of Redrow plc for health and safety matters.
- Competent advice for the company is provided by the in-house Health, Safety and Environmental Team.
- Redrow will consult with employees on health and safety and hold health and safety Leadership Meetings at suitable intervals.
- All employees must familiarise themselves with the content of the health and safety policies and support their implementation.
- Redrow's health and safety policy will be reviewed annually and updated as necessary with any changes communicated to those affected by the changes.
- The policy will cover the management structure and responsibilities, audit and monitoring arrangements, training requirements and health and safety consultation arrangements
- Detailed arrangements and responsibilities will be contained in the health and safety policy and standards, management procedures and health and safety plans.
